

What are YLG Forums?

YLG Forums are small groups of young professionals, with a designated mentor, who meet to share their professional experiences in the land use and real estate/development field. Through YLG Forums, young leaders can engage one another on a range of management, technical, and professional development questions or issues. YLG Forums will meet once a month from January 2015 through June 2015. Please note that YLG Forums are open only to ULI members. If you are not currently a member, please complete an online application, which is available at ulisacramento.org. Discounted memberships are available for students and young professionals under 35 years old. Cost to participate in YLG Forums is $40.

How will YLG Forum groups will be chosen?

Each YLG Forum will have 8 - 12 participants; groups will be formed based on the following objectives:

- 1) Diversity. Groups will have representation from varied niches of commercial grade development, land use planning, brokerage, finance, and investing.
- 2) Avoidance of conflicts of interest. Sacramento is still a small town for real estate. We will try to avoid major conflicts of interest, such as any with the group facilitator and/or other participants.

Regardless of our best efforts to ensure a complementary group of forum participants, sensitive issues may still arise. As a result, the group emphasizes confidentiality and asks that participants refrain from revealing the content of forum conversations to others.
